

Gunmen free arsonist

BERLIN (AP) — Prison officials let a convicted arsonist visit a West Berlin library Thursday ostensibly to do research on a book about criminology. Gunmen invaded the building and made off with the convict after a battle that wounded a library attendant and two prison guards.

A massive search was launched for the freed prisoner, Andreas Baader, 27, a woman friend and at least four persons who helped Baader get away. Police described him as a political radical.
