HEIDELBERG, Germany (AP) — Bombs went off Wednesday night in two cars parked inside the U.S. Army's European Command headquarters compound, killing three American servicemen and injuring five other persons.

It was the second bomb attack on an Army compound in West Germany in the past two weeks. An American lieutenant colonel was killed and 13 persons were injured May 11 by three bombs that shattered the officers' club of the 5th Corps headquarters building in Frankfurt.

An Army spokesman said the almost simultaneous blasts in cars parked some 150 yards apart blew a hole in a wall of a data processing building at the Heidelberg compound and shattered glass in a movie theater and officers' club at Heidelberg's Campbell Barracks. The post is headquarters for the European Command's 190,000 men spread out across the country.

The three dead, not immediately identified, were in the vicinity of the data processing center when the first bomb detonated. The Army said three military personnel and two civilians were treated for lacerations.

The second blast went off 10 to 15 seconds later in a car parked on a large lot facing the officers' club and theater.

Reports from the scene said U.S. military police seized three Germans in connection with the blasts. An Army spokesman could not confirm this report immediately.

In a filmed television interview aired shortly after the blasts, Interior Minister Hans Deitrich Genscher said the band being sought in recent terrorist attacks is largely identifiable with the so-called Baader-Meinhof gang.

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The defense in the Angela Davis case rested its case Wednesday after calling 12 witnesses in three days and declining to call Miss Davis to testify in her murder-kidnap-conspiracy trial.

A group calling itself the "Red Army Action" claimed responsibility for the three bombs that shattered the headquarters and officers' club in Frankfurt. The group also said it bombed German police buildings May 12 in Munich and Augsburg.

Military police cordoned off the Heidelberg post, located about a mile from the commercial heart of this medieval university city. The area has been under tight security along with other U.S. installations in West Germany because of the bombing in Frankfurt.

U.S. military commanders around Europe also were ordered to introduce stringent security measures at their installations after the Frankfurt bombing. These include identity checks of military personnel and personal searches of foreign civilians entering bases and buildings.

Lt. Col. Phil Ramsey of Manhattan, Kan., who was in the Campbell barracks officers' club at the time of the blasts, said: "It was very reminiscent of Saigon on certain days." Ramsey is chief of the command's public information division.

He said a cocktail party was in progress at the club in a room facing the parking lot when the first bomb exploded near the data processing building.

"There was no doubt that it was a bomb," he said. "No one thought it was a car backfiring."

He said the party guests reacted quickly to shouted warnings of "lie down. Don't go out." At about that time the second bomb exploded in the parking lot outside the club.
